You might not have a marketing problem.

You might have a positioning problem.

Here's how to tell the difference — and why it matters before you spend another naira on ads.

THE SYMPTOM

Views went up. Sales didn't.

Illustrative numbers. If they feel familiar, keep swiping.

Ads don’t fix unclear.

They amplify it.

If people can’t tell why you over the next option, more reach just means more people deciding you’re not for them — faster.

THE FIX

Positioning answers three questions before a customer has to ask.

1 Who exactly is this for?

Not “everyone”. A person you could describe.

2 Why you, not the next option?

One reason a customer could repeat to a friend.

3 Why now?

What changes for them the day they choose you.

WHY IT MATTERS MORE HERE

84%

of Nigerian adults surveyed ran into a scam in the past year.

Your customers arrive suspicious. Clarity is how you get trusted. Looking credible isn't vanity — it's conversion.

Source: GASA, State of Scams in Nigeria 2026 (survey of 1,180 adults).

Fix the position. Then spend.

Comment your one-line answer to “Why you?”

We’ll reply with how a customer actually hears it.

PROHUB